Built in 2006, the Kanbar Campus Center is a catalyst for building community and fostering both social and intellectual engagement. The 72,000-square-foot Center’s open design, with walls of windows, captures the natural setting and makes events within the building visible from much of the main campus. In addition to providing facilities for students to eat, meet and connect with friends, the Center is the hub for recreation, academic support and residential life. Here, students can relax by the fireplace in the Living Room, showcase their talents in the Performance Space, play pool in Ted’s second-floor coffee bar or eat at the Common Thread Café. The Kanbar Campus Center also incorporates a range of student amenities, including the University Bookstore, Mail Services, Ted’s convenience store and wireless capability throughout. By including offices for student programs, counseling and community services, the Kanbar Campus Center is the heart of student life on campus.

The Academic Suite located on the first floor offers an array of services for students. Home to Study Abroad, Academic Achievement, Disability Services and the Honors Program, the suite connects Academic Life and Student Life in one building.

The Living Room presents a space with a modern feel inviting to the Philadelphia University community. With its edgy design features and actual fireplace, the space warms the heart of campus life.

The Common Thread, Ted’s and Ted’s Convenience Store offer dining options during building hours. From grabbing a cup of Starbucks' to listening to local artists, the spaces provide both nourishment and entertainment.

Student Life corridor, community, residential, spiritual, mental, co-curricular and extracurricular support services and programming supplement the student experience at Philadelphia University.

The Student Government Association connects and helps maintain clubs and organizations including professional letter, community and interest-driven groups. A space for Clubs and Organizations encourages student involvement. The Campus Activities Board hosts programs each weekend for student enjoyment.

The University Bookstore provides students, faculty and staff with the materials need for success. The Store provides muslin, paint, Apple computers and t-squares all in the same space.

With state-of-the-art technology, the Performance Space is the place to be for academic forums, presentations, campus community events and student programming. From fashion shows to sustainability conferences, the space caters to all audiences.

Equipped with ceiling-mounted projectors and other multi-media accessories, Meeting Rooms provide the campus community with ample space to gather.

Philadelphia University alumnus Maurice Kanbar ’52, is a successful inventor, entrepreneur, author and Hollywood producer. His generous donation was the foundation on which The Campus Center was built. As an inventor, Mr. Kanbar created the D-Fuzz-It Sweater Comb, the Safetyglide hypodermic needle protector, a cryogenic cataract remover, authored Secret’s from an Inventor’s Notebook and developed SKYY Vodka. Dedicated to encouraging students to find better ways to do things, Mr. Kanbar awards annual jury prizes for student projects in Graphic Design and Industrial Design Programs.
