The University’s new gymnasium and recreation center is scheduled to open during the 2006-07 academic year and will house the varsity basketball programs as well as the women’s volleyball program. Zoltek and Shirley, meanwhile, return for their final season with the Lady Rams, looking to help the team to a 15th consecutive postseason appearance.
This is Philadelphia University

Philadelphia University, founded in 1884, is a private university with 3,100 part- and full-time students from 38 states and 30 countries. The University offers more than 50 undergraduate and graduate degree programs leading to the Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Architecture, Bachelor of Landscape Architecture, master’s degrees and a doctoral degree in Textile Engineering and Science. Academic programs encompass architecture, design, business, engineering, textiles, fashion, science and health.

Through a unique blend of liberal and specialized education, the University prepares students to become competent professionals in today’s complex, interdependent global society. Recognized as a premier professional university, Philadelphia University has established a phenomenal record of career success for its graduates. The University maintains that success through extensive networking with prospective employers, innovative programs that meet emerging needs in the marketplace and extensive career planning support for students. It all adds up to a placement rate consistently over 90 percent.

Primarily a teaching institution, the University encourages close connections between faculty and students. Classes are intentionally kept small and faculty make a practice of being available to students outside the classroom. Often, students can partner with faculty members to pursue joint research interests and gain career experience. Our faculty is a diverse group of professionals who hold not only strong academic credentials but frequently possess impressive work experience.

The University holds accreditation from: National Architectural Accrediting Board (NAAB); Foundation for Interior Design Education and Research (FIDER); American Chemical Society (ACS); Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education (CAAHEP); Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

Head Coach Tom Shirley

Philadelphia University Head Women’s Basketball Coach Tom Shirley recently concluded his 16th season with the Lady Rams and 24th season of coaching overall, leading the Lady Rams to an overall record of 20-13 including a 14th consecutive postseason appearance. As one of the most successful women’s basketball coaches in NCAA Division II, Shirley has an overall coaching record of 494-219, ranking him in the top ten among active NCAA Division II coaches in career victories.

Shirley, 50, came to then-Philadelphia Textile in 1989 as both the head women’s basketball coach and Associate Director of Athletics. In January of 1992, he succeeded H.R. Ted Taylor as the University’s Director of Athletics, a position he still holds.

A 1976 graduate of Allentown College, where he was a member of the men’s basketball team, Shirley’s coaching career began in 1981 at his college alma mater. During his highly successful eight-year tenure with the Centaurs, Shirley guided the program to an overall mark of 149-73 while also serving as the school’s Director of Athletics. In his final season at Allentown, Shirley led the team to a school-record 24-6 mark and an eventual berth in the NCAA Division III Sweet 16. In his first season with Textile, Shirley, who has an undergraduate degree in economics and a master’s degree in sports administration, led the team to the ECAC Tournament after posting a 17-11 record. In the 12 seasons since, Shirley has built one of the nation’s premier NCAA Division II women’s programs as evidenced by its current streak of 14 straight postseason appearances. The streak began in the 1991-92 season when the Lady Rams, coupled with a 26-6 record, received their second ECAC Tournament bid in three years. However, it was the 1992-93 season that put the program on the map when Shirley guided the team to a school-record 27-2 mark. After beginning the season with 22 straight victories, the team received its first-ever NCAA Tournament bid under Shirley. For his efforts, he was named the American Women’s Sports Federation (AWSF) Division II National Coach of the Year award.

Coming off an NCAA Tournament appearance in 2000-01 season, Shirley guided the Lady Rams to a 19-11 mark overall in 2001-02, capping the year with the team’s first-ever ECAC title. The following season, Shirley led his team to a second consecutive title, posting an 80-76 win over Bryant (R.I.) College and this past year, the Lady Rams advanced to the 2004 ECAC title game before falling to Southampton College in the championship.

In addition to his duties as coach and administrator at the University, Shirley also serves as a member of the NCAA Division II Championships Committee and chairs the NCAA Division II Retention Committee as well serving on the regional committee for women’s basketball.

Shirley lives in Harleysville, Pa., with his wife, Monica, and daughters Kristen, who is currently a senior on the Philadelphia University women’s basketball team, and Caitlin.
Assistant Coaches

Paul Stadelberger

Assistant Coach

Paul Stadelberger enters his 17th year as a member of Head Coach Tom Shirley’s Philadelphia University women’s basketball coaching staff. Prior to joining Shirley in 1989, Stadelberger served as assistant men’s basketball coach at Haverford College for six years.

Stadelberger, who attended Susan Wagner High School in New York, received his Bachelor of Arts degree in education from Concordia (N.Y.) College, where he was a member of the football and basketball team.

The principal of the New Foundation’s Charter School in Northeast Philadelphia, Stadelberger received his masters degree in special education from Beaver College in 1978.

Stadelberger and his wife, Barbara, have three children, Paul, Beth and Steve.

Melissa Kelly

A former stand-out player for the Lady Rams from 1998 to 2002, Melissa Kelly joins Head Coach Tom Shirley’s coaching staff for the 2005-06 campaign. Prior to her return to the University, Kelly served as an assistant coach at Chestnut Hill College under another former Lady Rams’ alum, Jackie deMarteleire.

In her four years as a player under Shirley, the Norristown High product led the team to a four-year mark of 84-41, scoring 795 career points. She also ranks eighth all-time in school history with 193 career steals and ninth all-time in career assists with 347. As a senior, Kelly averaged a career-high 11.0 ppg in leading the Lady Rams to the 2002 Division II ECAC Championship. In doing so, Kelly was named tournament MVP, averaging 19.0 ppg and 6.0 assists per game in helping the team to their first-ever title.

Jim Munn

Jim Munn enters his first season as a member of the Philadelphia University women’s basketball staff, bringing to the program a wealth of coaching experience. Last year, Munn served as the Head Girl’s Varsity Coach at Kennedy-Kenrick High School after six years as the Assistant Varsity Girls’ Coach at Cardinal Dougherty High School.

A graduate of LaSalle College High and Penn State University, Munn was instrumental in helping Dougherty to three consecutive seasons with 20 or more wins from 2002 through 2004. This included being ranked #10 in the East Region according to USA Today in 2003 when the team finished with a 21-6 overall record.

In addition to his work at Kennedy-Kenrick and Cardinal Dougherty, Munn has also been active with the Philadelphia Belles AAU Girl’s Basketball team, including leading the team to four Mid-Atlantic Championships.

All proceeds from this event will go to support the athletic programs at Philadelphia University
Season Outlook

Tammy Greene. Darlene Hildebrand. Theresa Carroll. Jean-Marie Reilly. Samara Speakes. All-time greats in Philadelphia University women’s basketball history, but who is next in line to join the list? That is the main question Head Coach Tom Shirley is facing as he prepares his team for the 2005-06 campaign.

“For the first time in a long time, we enter the season without a proven commodity in terms of star potential,” said Shirley, who enters the year with 494 career coaching victories. “We have several players that are capable, but no one with a reputation of being a ‘money’ player, yet.”

A year ago, there was no question who the money player was for Shirley and the Lady Rams. Forward Samara Speakes clearly fit the bill, leading the team in scoring with 21.5 ppg en route to becoming the program’s sixth All-American. A three-year starter who concluded her career with 2,082 points, Speakes was also named the New York Collegiate Athletic Conference (NYCAC) Player of the Year as well as the Daktronics Northeast Region Player of the Year as a senior. “Samara was certainly one of the top players in the history of the program and worthy of every accolade she ever received,” said Shirley of the Bodine High product. “What made her truly special, though, was her ability to play her best in our biggest games and she did that continually throughout her career. On and off the floor, she will be missed this season.”

One player that will look to fill some of the void left by Speakes is junior Alisha Ferguson. A 5-11 center, Ferguson came into her own last season when she posted a career-high in scoring with 9.5 ppg. The Fort Washington, Pa., native also led the team in rebounding with 9.8 rpg as well as field-goal percentage, hitting 52.6% of her attempts. “Alisha will play a major role in whether or not we reach a certain level of success this season. This is her turn and her time,” said Shirley, who will be assisted this season by Paul Stadelberger, former Lady Rams’ standout Melissa Kelly and Jim Munn. “She is a very tough, physical presence that gets a lot of second-chance opportunities with her hard work and athletic ability. We are looking her for to give us double-figure points and rebounds each and every game and that is something that she is certainly capable of.”

Providing Ferguson with help up front will be fellow junior Nikki Mechell, along with junior transfer Meg Abele and sophomore Ashley Webster. A talented lefthander, Mechell is coming off a sophomore campaign in which she registered career-highs with 9.0 ppg and 3.1 rpg. “Nikki is a player with a huge upside,” Shirley said of the redshirt junior. “This is her fourth year in the program and we are looking for her to take her game to the next level. She has worked very hard in the offseason and she has the ability to create not only for herself, but for others as well.”

Abele, meanwhile, comes to Philadelphia University via Division II Iona College, where she was a third-team All-Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference (MAAC) selection as a sophomore last year when she averaged 15.9 ppg. “We expect Meg to fill some of the scoring left by Samara,” said Shirley. “She comes to the University with a tremendous resume at both the high school and collegiate level and we are looking for big things from her this season.”

A versatile sophomore, Webster made her mark as a true freshman last season with her ability at both the offensive and defensive ends of the floor. “Ashley brings some speed to a team that is not blessed with a lot of speed,” said Shirley, who added that freshmen Morgan Henderson and Kyra Ellzy will also vie for time in the frontcourt. “Last year, Ashley established herself as a slasher with good rebounding ability, but her game will improve as her jump shot improves.”

At the point, Shirley has a pair of veterans in seniors Megan Zoltek and Antionene Fullard that will look to establish themselves as the team’s floor general. A team co-captain, Zoltek improved as the season went on last year, her first as a starter. She finished the year with 2.9 ppg while dishing out 69 assists. “Megan is coming off an injury that required surgery, so her conditioning will be the first real question mark,” said Shirley. “She really came into her own at the end of last season when she earned ECAC All-Tournament honors, scoring a career-high 15 points in the championship game. This season, we hope that her scoring will increase, but more importantly, we need her decision-making to continue to improve.”

Fullard, meanwhile, provides the Lady Rams with a different look at the point. A penetrating ball handler, she has the ability to create on the break for others as well as herself. “Given Megan’s injury, the opportunity is there for Antionene,” said Shirley of the Fullard, who played at nearby Germantown High. “She is very good with the ball and her presence gives us some much-needed versatility in the backcourt. Additionally, we may use Antionene and Megan in the backcourt together, giving team’s yet another look.”

Scoring from the guard position will come from a variety of players, including senior co-captain Kristen Shirley, junior Kate McNulty and sophomore Sydney Harris. A three-year letterwinner, Shirley should see increased time in her final year of eligibility. “Kristen will continue with her role as a sub off the bench,” said Coach Tom Shirley of his daughter. “She is a more-than-willing player in practice, taking the role of defending our top players on a consistent basis. She has the ability to knock down the open shot and when we need help cracking a zone, she will see her share of time.”

Another member of Shirley’s talented junior class, McNulty returned from a knee injury last year to average a career-best 5.9 ppg while leading the team in free-throw shooting at 83.8%. “There is nobody on our team with a desire to play and succeed more than Kate,” said Shirley. “She has worked very hard in redesigning her jump shot and she has the ability to knock down the open jumper or take it to the basket. She is very aggressive and I look for her to be near the top of the team in free throw attempts.”

Harris joined the team as a walk-on last year as a freshman and her improvement in the offseason has caught Shirley’s eye. “She had a great summer and she looks like a different player,” said Shirley, who will also have freshmen Amanda Brennan and Shaleta Frye at his disposal in the backcourt as well. “She works very hard and we are pleased with the progress she has made.”

Speaking of progress, Shirley knows that his team will likely progress as the year wears on. “Like I said, we don’t have a lot of ‘star’ power, initially, but that doesn’t mean it won’t work out that way. I really like the balance that we have and I truly think we have a chance to do something special.”

In addition to looking for some playmakers this season, Shirley will also face the task of playing in a new conference as the University made the move from the New York Collegiate Athletic Conference (NYCAC) to the Central Atlantic Collegiate Conference (CACC). “This will provide us with a whole other set of obstacles,” said Shirley. “For the past decade or so, we were used to playing at LIU-C.W. Post and Molloy College, but now, it’s the fear of the unknown. We have never played at Dominican College or Post University, but it’s an exciting time and we are preparing as best we can. Hopefully, a year from now, we will have put together another successful year of 20 wins and added another player to our list of Philadelphia University greats.”
